APPLE CULTURE FUTURE INDUSTRY

THE FAMOUS ELBERTA PEACH GROWING PROFITLESS

An interesting interview with N. Dietzen, the well-known horticulturist, about the famous Hoss apple.

The Elberta peach industry in the South has about reached its height and from now on it is the consensus of opinion among the growers that the acreage will decline.

The coming profitable fruit crop of this section will be apples. A Chattanooga News representative met Mr. N. Dietzen this morning and in discussing the subject Mr. Dietzen said: "If I was a younger man than I am I would plant apples in large quantities. While it will take about eight years for an apple crop to begin coming, yet it would be a surer and more profitable return than any peach crop could possibly be. In my judgment the Hoss apple is the best adapted for North Georgia, North Alabama and East Tennessee, or any other good apple that comes in late. The Hoss apple is of sturdy growth, not so liable to frosts and freezes in the early part of the year as is the Elberta and other early and tender peaches. Then, too, the Hoss apple is almost an invariable crop, and never brings less than 40 cents a bushel, and unlike peaches, does not have to be gathered the day they are ripe and shipped in ice cars or run the risk of glutting the particular market to which they are shipped. In fact, you can take your time in gathering the Hoss apple, carefully assort them, ship them, when you get ready, for they will stand packing, shipping and holding for weeks before they are sold to the consumer and they make the best cooking apple in the world. Good apple stock costs from $30 to $70 per thousand trees, and if the land is strong they may be planted about twenty feet apart, but if the land is not particularly fertile it is advisable to put them out about twenty-five feet apart, thus averaging 150 trees per acre."

Mr. Dietzen has spent a life in fruit culture and is regarded as the best informed man in this section on the subject. It is known that the Limber Twig and the Shockey apples of North Georgia have made several plantations very rich. Over there they gather the crop in the early fall and hold until the winter months and then ship, netting about 75 cents a bushel. The Hoss apple gets its name from a North Carolinian by that name, who propagated the apple more than fifty years ago, and Bishop Hoss is a distinguished descendant or a branch of that family.

Mr. Dietzen's views are well worth putting into execution by farmers generally and fruit growers in particular. He has cut down many of his peach trees as have other big growers. He further told the reporter that the Hoss apple will live many years longer than a peach tree and will bear as high as fifteen bushels to the tree. This, at 60 cents a bushel, means $9 per tree per annum, or $1,250 per acre, and can be counted on with a greater degree of certainty without the worrying incident to the peach industry.—Chattanooga News.

Indicted.

Baillie & Dumary, the contractors who are building the lock and dam, were indicted at last session of the Federal Court in Chattanooga for alleged violations of the 8-hour law. Contention is made that the entire work is government work, as the government has a man on the spot as superintendent, although it was understood heretofore that the construction of the lock was the only matter in which the government was interested. The government works under the 8-hour law strictly.

FORGED NAMES

To Secure Money From Marion Trust & Banking Co.

JASPER, Tenn., Jan. 7.—Thomas Defur, of near Whitwell, went to the Marion Trust & Banking Co., of this place, last week to borrow $25 on a note. The bank officials refused to take the note unless endorsed by two good men, as is their custom. Defur left and shortly returned to the bank with the note this time bearing on the back the names of J. J. Dykes and D. T. Layne, two prominent business men of Whitwell. The bank paid Defur the money, and he left. Later becoming alarmed over the matter, the bank officials telephoned to Whitwell to the alleged endorsers and received the reply that they had not endorsed the note, and knew nothing of the matter. All points of the compass were ransacked then to locate Defur, with the result he was finally arrested in South Pittsburg, and placed in jail here for obtaining money by forging names as endorsers on check.

Jack London's Latest Novel.

Uncle Remus's—The Home Magazine makes the important announcement that it has secured the serial rights of Jack London's latest novel, "Martin Eden." It will begin in the February issue of that popular Magazine, which was founded by Joel Chandler Harris, and is edited by Julian Harris and Don Marquis. The critics who have read "Martin Eden" state that it is gripping, vivid and picturesque, and is such a story as only Jack London could write. The editors of Uncle Remus's—The Home Magazine believe it to be a story that every man and woman should read, as it contains a big lesson, and in its arraignment of false ideals, is both noble and notable.

Martin Eden, the character who is really the book, is so keenly true that he seems lurid with life. He is intense, big in his ideas and ideals, and without faltering, yet unselfishly, he strives ceaselessly and courageously for the genuinely best in life.

"It is just the story that should be printed serially," states the editor of Uncle Remus's—The Home Magazine, for there is much you will want to learn more about and understand better before going on, and the time between each issue of the Magazine gives the reader ample opportunity. Send 50 cents in stamps to the Sunny South Publishing Company and they will send you Uncle Remus's The Home Magazine eight months, beginning with the February issue which contains the first instalment of "Martin Eden."

Sent Them Turkeys.

SOUTH PITTSBURG, Tenn., Jan. 7.—Some time ago the firm of Denham & Co., lost a quantity of goods by thieves breaking into their store. Detectives Bush and Bass, of Chattanooga, were put to work on the case and supplied with a list of the stolen goods. They managed to secure half the stolen goods, or $150 worth, from pawn shops in Chattanooga, and better still the thieves and sent them to South Pittsburg. As a partial reward for their work, Denham & Co. sent them two nice turkeys which suited the detectives exactly as it meant turkey New Year's Day.

Cordova, Ala.

Special to the News.

This is New Year's day and another milestone in life's history has passed. Many have been the changes during the last year. Our friends have left us and gone forever. With this I will begin a new year with the readers of the News and I sincerely hope our relations will be as pleasant as during the past. This is the time for noble resolutions; a time when thoughts should be turned towards home, and as we let go of the old year we realize that to most of us it has been a kind year. To others the dark side has been turned. We must not forget that upon the homes of some of our News' readers since last New Year's, a shadow has fallen and the mantle of sorrow has wrapped the inmates in its somber folds and some homes are like the empty nests that hang on the withered bough, desolate because the life and song went out with the birds. New homes have been made, new ties formed and old ones severed, but in our onward march, it is not well to stop to measure the load each one carries. No life is either all sunshine or all storm. If this New Year brings prosperity, let us rejoice. Let us be thankful that our lives have fallen in pleasant places. Let us quickly turn over the sad page and look at the bright picture that awaits us.

Jim Aniton, of near Empire, as in our town one day last week Jim looks fine and healthy. He was all through the big strike at Empire and got so poor and thin that the shadow of a clothes line would protect him from the sun.

Ed White, of Annyma, Ala., took dinner at Wm. Leach's last week on his way to Empire.

Cordova had four fine Christmas trees. Where is there another little town that can beat that?

We noticed in last week's issue of the News where "Texas Bachelor" wanted to hear from "Pedro," and said "Pedro" was a friend of his. Yes, I think I know you. How well I remember while you were at Empire and your big arguments with old Pap Vickers on the Scriptures, you being a Hardshell and Pap a Divine Healer.

When Pap would pull those big black whiskers, he said something, and I think he healed you before you left. Come again and give us some more potato and turnip stories, and sometime I might tell a big cabbage snake story.

What is the matter with Whitwell, Roope and all the other correspondents? Come on with your good letters and help make the News a finer and better paper this year than it ever was before.

What has become of "Gofetchit," my good old democratic friend? How well I remember how he used to gather huckleberries on the mountain above Read Miller's. Come on, let us hear once more from you.

Prof. Gerganir is teaching a fine singing school at this place.

Eugene Leach, Ed Wilhite and Will Smith were out walking with their best girls Sunday.
